

At KH, we enjoy reading an eclectic selection of both fiction and non-fiction. Here is a list of books we have read:

My Father's Paradise, by Ariel Sabar
Stones From a River, by Ursula Hegi
Rashi's Daughters, Yocheved, by Maggie Anton
Let There Be Water, by Seth Siegel
The Underground Railroad, by Colson Whitehead
Paris In The Present Tense, by Mark Helprin
Gateway to the Moon, by Mary Morris
The Zookeeper's Wife, by Diane Ackerman
Journey to the End of the Millennium, by A.B. Yehoshua
The Finkler Question, by Howard Jacobson
A Tale of Love and Darkness, by Amos Oz
Judas, by Amos Oz
The Hare with the Amber Eyes, by Edmund de Waal
American Pastoral, by Phillip Roth
My Promised Land, by Ari Shavit
By Fire By Water, by Mitchell Kaplan
The Spinoza of Market Street, by Isaac Bashevis Singer
Turbulent Souls (Choosing My Religion), by Stephen Dubner
Songs for the Butcher's Daughter, by Peter Manseau
What We Talk About When We Talk About Anne Frank, by Nathan Englander
Kaddish.com, by Nathan Englander
Moonglow, by Michael Chabon
An Odyssey, by Daniel Mendelsohn
My Russian Grandmother and Her American Vacuum Cleaner, by Meir Shalev
Tell Me A Riddle, by Tillie Olsen
Little Failure, by Gary Shteyngart
The Golem and The Jinn, by Helene Wecker
Everything Is Illuminated, by Jonathan Safran Foer
Here All Along, by Sarah Hurwitz
Like a Driven Leaf, by Milton Steinberg
The Color of Water, by James McBride
In the Garden of the Beasts, by Erik Larson
To the End of the Land, by David Grossman
Aperigon, by Colum McCann
The Light of Days, by Judy Batalion
Outwitting History, by Aaron Lansky
The Netanyahus, by Joshua Cohen
The Last Kings of Shanghai: The Rival Jewish Dynasties that Helped Create Modern China, by Jonathan Kaufman